Use the internal reporting channels

SCOPE OF APPLICATION

Irregularities are deemed to be all acts or omissions, wilful or negligent, which are attributed to the conduct of Group employees in the exercise of their professional duties, which violate:

- the legislation, rules or regulations in force, namely all acts or omissions, provided for in article 2, no. 1 of the Portuguese Law no. 93/2021;
- the "Code of Ethics and Business Conduct";
- good management practices;

in all cases by reference to the areas of accounting, internal accounting controls, other internal controls, auditing, and the fight against corruption, money laundering, terrorist financing and financial crime.

In situations in which a person wishes to report a breach, preference should be given to internal reporting channels created by the Group, such as the Whistleblowing Channel, rather than external reporting channels or public disclosure of the breach.

If the whistleblower chooses not to use the internal reporting means provided by the Company, in situations where these should have been used first, the whistleblower may not benefit from the protection afforded by law.

Whistleblowers can only use external reporting channels when:

- It has reasonable grounds to believe that the breach cannot be effectively disclosed or resolved internally or that there is a risk of retaliation;
- It initially lodged an internal complaint without being notified of the measures envisaged or adopted as a result of the complaint within the legally established time limits;
- The infraction constitutes a crime or an administrative offence punishable by a fine of more than EUR 50,000.

The whistleblower may only publicly disclose a breach when:

- acts of retaliation consist of an action or omission, which, occurring in a professional context and following an internal report, causes or may cause damage to the person lodging the complaint, whether or not such damage is of a material or non-material nature;
- has filed an internal complaint and an external complaint, or directly an external complaint as indicated above, without appropriate action having been taken within the legally established time limits.
